

Come Alive Listening ...

Learning to listen and identify sounds is central to early language development. To develop good phonological awareness, children need to be able to listen attentively to the sounds they hear around them. With catchy songs about listening walks in four different environments, Come Alive Listening engages children's interest in the sounds around them. By combining urban and rural settings, it builds on children's own experiences of familiar environments and sparks their curiosity in places they may not have visited. It can also be used to introduce the idea of going on a listening walk, and to inspire real listening walks and songs.

Let's go for a listening walk!

Introduce environmental sounds in context by taking children for 'listening walks' at the seaside, the country, the street and the park.

The pack includes:

- Four large picture cards - one for each scene, showing all six sound makers in context
- Six smaller cards per scene, depicting the sounds separately
- An audio CD with a bank of sound effects plus listening and sound sequencing activities
- A teacher's book with ideas for cross-curricular extension activities
